THIS WEEK (26)

Roger Russell introduced his guest, Andy Frederickson.

The resignation of George MacDonald from the Club because of pressure of business was received. It was accepted with regret.

It was moved by Boyd Slavik and seconded by John Ross, that the revised draft Constitution and By-Laws of the Edmonton Gyro Club be accepted.

The following amendment was moved by Bert Boren and seconded by Roger Russell:

That Article XIII, Clause 1, be amended to read: "..... not less than six weeks prior to such meeting."

The amendment to the motion carried. The motion as amended carried.

(over)

A vote of thanks was extended to the Committee which did the work of re-drafting the 1958 Constitution and By-Laws. This Committee consisted of Howard Wilson, Chairman; Frank Newson, and Stan Smith.

The winner of the draw was your correspondent.

The Club celebrated the Annual Christmas Party at the Edmonton Club on Thursday, December 8, 1983. Special thanks is extended to the following Past Presidents, each of whom donated a bottle of wine to help make the occasion a success: Tommy Douglas, Jack Agnew, Marty Larson, Gordon Rennie, Howie Sharp, Russ Carter, and Glenn Treacy.

At this season of the year one must be thrifty but look nifty. As you do your Christmas shopping hearken to the following conversation:

"Good morning. I came to this store because I don't like to bargain."

"Well, you've come to the right place. We're strictly a one-price outfit."

"Excellent. I like that blue suit over there. What will it cost?"

"Like I said, I don't fool around with bargaining. So I'm not going to ask two-fifty for this suit, or even two thirty-five. I'm going to give you my best price: two hundred and twenty dollars."

"Well you're my kind of business man, and that's why I'm here. I won't fool around and offer you one-sixty for that suit, or even one-seventy. I'll give you two hundred dollars for that suit."

"You can have it for two hundred and ten."

"I'll take it."

And the best of the festive season for all.

Cheerio
